Really Good Cookies wins “Best Cookie” award at America’s Best Professional Food Competition

Americas Best Professional Food Competition was held in Anaheim, California July 13 - 15, 2007. Industry Affiliates served as the culinary judges. They sampled hundreds products through a series of blind tastings. The winners in each of the various categories were announced at an awards brunch at the Anaheim Marriott. Really Good Cookies took home the bronze medal for its Signature Cookie making it one of the top three best cookies in the country. “This is our third win in three months in our third competition; we’re three for three and couldn’t be more delighted!” said Christine Najac owner of Really Good Cookies. In conjunction with the professional food competition America’s Best Foods hosted Celebrity Chefs from the Food Network who conducted 30-minute culinary demonstrations. Some of the notable Celebrity Chefs that were in attendance: Sara Moulton, Jamie and Bobby Deen, Warren Brown and David Rosengarten.

Really Good Cookies is an internet-based retail gift company specializing in handmade-gourmet cookies, brownies and confections. Really Good Cookies is guided by a mantra which has become the foundation that the company continues to build on: Do what others don’t dare to! Reinvent the cookie. Make that cookie unforgettable with every bite! The packaging and overall company passion is equally as innovative. All of the products are packaged as gifts therefore the best way to express the Really Good Cookies enthusiasm is “gift giving reasons are endless, don’t make them tasteless!” You can visit this tasteful world of WOW! at www.ReallyGoodCookies.com.
